Manique Gunasekera gives a place for Lankan English

A ffiliate academic in the country is the one who is pushed into the role of a respected researcher on "various" subjects. Sheheesha Shreyas, the Department of English Language and English Literature at the University of Kelaniya, is also a principal in post-colonialism. She helped me prepare the following few lectures at the same time that I was an student of English as my main subject of research in the University of Kelaniya. As an interested student of the subject, she had brought to my attention the relevant set of books and literature. She is one of the contributors to the post-colonial discourse in the country. English is, as the official language and the language of the post-colonial nation, has been the subject of many works. We are looking forward to such works as this one, which deals with the subject of English in the country.

Manique Gunasekera's book, "Lankan English," is an interesting case and I rewrite it in my own words here.
